NUMBER 99, VOLUME XXIII

WSU baseballers gain regional tourney bid

For the third time in five years, the Wright State baseball team has earned an NCAA post-season tournament berth, head coach Ron Noschwitz announced yesterday.

For the second straight season, the Raiders will also play host to the four-team North Central Regional field on May 15-17. Last year, WSU placed third. Other tournament teams have not yet been determined for the region.

The ticket prices have been announced as well.

Two games will be played on May 15 with starting times at 12:30 and 4 p.m. Competition will continue on May 16 with games at 9:30 a.m., 12:30 and 4 p.m. The two remaining teams will meet at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, with a second game scheduled at 4 p.m., if necessary.

All-tournament tickets for the three-day event can be purchased at $4 for adults and $2 for students. Single day passes will be available at $2 for adults and $1.50 for students. Tickets can be purchased at the gate on the day of the game.

It will be the eighth NCAA regional tourney appearance for WSU and the second time the Raiders have hosted the event.

The remainder of the regional field will be filled on Sunday, May 10. The top candidates include Lewis (33-21-1), Shipensburg (35-8), Slippery Rock (27-18), Mankato State (28-14), and South Dakota State (27-15).

WSU was one of five host sites announced yesterday. Only the South Atlantic Regional site is still to be determined.

In addition, 12 of the 20 participants were selected.

The regional winners will advance to the NCAA Division II College World Series at Troy State's Patterson Field in Montgomery, Alabama on May 22.

Seiger selected as a public service intern

By MATTHEW MAIN
Associate Writer

Karen Seiger, a senior political science major, has been elected as one of the 41 participants in the 1987 Governor's Honors Program for college students this summer.

The program was initiated by Governor Richard Celeste in 1985 to provide opportunities for junior and senior level college students to explore and prepare for careers in public service.

The students intern with state agencies and spend eight weeks working on special projects, assisting agency directors and helping develop and implement public policy.

The students will also have the opportunity to discuss policy-making with state leaders in a series of seminars. Past speakers have included Celeste, Secretary of State Sherrod Brown and U.S. Congressmen Chalmers Wylie and John Kasich.

"I really don't feel that grades were the major influence in being chosen," Seiger said. "I feel my experience played a key part (in) my selection."

Seiger has been involved with political parties since she was 11-years-old, she said, and has taken numerous courses in analytical state politics, as well as many communication classes. She has also traveled quite a bit and is a polyglot: one who speaks five languages fluently.

"I lived in Brazil for three years and was a foreign exchange student for one year in Belgium," she said. "Living in these places has given me a lot of experience in dealing with and understanding certain types of governments."

Seiger will be working this summer in the Public Utilities Commission/Public Information Department in Columbus. Her job will consist of researching and writing promotional pamphlets, as well as pamphlets on public facilities and general information. Other tasks include layouts and general design of the pamphlets.

The program will last for eight weeks, beginning June 22 and ending Aug. 14. Seiger will receive a stipend as well as housing and transportation.

Following her return in August, Seiger will spend her fall quarter in New York. "It's a four month academic quarter, where I'll study at Long Island University in conjunction with the United Nations," Seiger said. "I'll study global and urban development as well as international economics. I'll also get the opportunity to meet U.N. leaders and get hands on experience (as) to how the U.N. is run and operated."

"Because my primary goal is international relations, I feel my quarter at the U.N. will be an invaluable experience."

Another political activity Seiger has participated in is the Model U.N. here on campus. "What I did was participate in a seminar in the winter and then competed for the part of a representative in the U.N. Then, I was flown to New York for a week of U.N. simulation."

WORLD BRIEFS

The United States has been told to return to Iran the remaining $451 million the U.S. seized in 1981 during the Hostage Crisis in Tehran. The State Department is studying yesterday's order issued by the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal. U.S. officials said they expect the money will be returned.

The United States and the Soviet Union said they've agreed to establish nuclear risk reduction centers. The centers would permit immediate explanations in case of misunderstandings that could lead to accidental nuclear conflict. President Reagan and Soviet Leader Gorbachev agreed in 1985 to establish the centers.

The trial of John Demjanjuk continued in Jerusalem yesterday with testimony focused on an alleged ID card prosecutors say bears his photo. Gasping sounds from spectators rippled through the courtroom when a university professor superimposed the alleged Nazi identification card photo over a video image of Demjanjuk. Professor Patricia Smith said Demjanjuk is "Ivan the Terrible," a guard at a death camp where thousands of people died.

OHIO BRIEFS

(XENIA)—The Greene County Animal Shelter yesterday morning released to its owner a pit bull terrier that attacked a girl two weeks ago. The shelter kept the animal for the customary quarantine period after a biting incident but had no authority to hold the animal any longer. The City of Xenia passed an emergency vicious dog ordinance shortly after the pit bull attacked the Greene County girl.

(DAYTON)—An official of the downtown Dayton department store where a man jumped to his death Saturday said the store increased security at its parking ramp after previous suicides. Sixty-year-old Martin Westendorf of Dayton was the ninth person to take his life by jumping the store's 10-story parking garage. The store said it placed additional guards on the ramp after another jumper died last year. However, officials said not all levels of the garage can be watched continually.

U2 proves to be well worth the wait, panic, hangover...

By MATTHEW MAIN
Associate Writer

I sat through six and a half hours of musical bus seats, constant alcohol consumption and listening to the same album five times in a row. I went 36 hours without sleep and was crushed as 50,000-plus people attempted to exit a stadium via four turnstiles—all at the same time. I'd also do it all over again.

What I experienced was the WTUE bus excursion to Pontiac, Michigan to see U2 at the Silverdome.

Supporting their fifth studio album, The Joshua Tree, U2 stirred the social conscience of 50,000-plus fans with songs of drug abuse, apartheid and nuclear disarmament. U2 is not a political band, a rebel band nor even a pop band. They do play rock-n-roll with fury and passion long needed in the world of musical art.

In an October 1983 issue of Rock Magazine, Bono, lead singer & lyricist, spoke of U2's style. "We're putting a torch to all this non-stick wallpaper music that is around now. People have to speak out. Things have to be done. We can't all lie down."

That's exactly what they did last Thursday night. Once again, another strip of "non-stick wallpaper music" was burned down with as much fervor and pride as their War LP expressed.

U2 opened the concert with "Where The Streets Have No Name" and "I Will Follow." During the opening of the third song, "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For," Bono stopped singing and demanded a security guard stop harrasing someone in the crowd. "These people pay our wages, and I will not sing until Mr. Security leaves the floor," he cried out in Irish-accented disgust.

Bono's cohorts, guitarist The Edge, bassist Adam Clayton and drummer Larry Mullen Jr., looked on in surprise and question. Eventually, Bono started again, from the top this time, finishing the song.

Songs of a younger U2 were not forgotten as they performed "Sunday, Bloody Sunday" and "New Year's Day" from their War LP, as well as "October" from the self-titled album. Two hallmarks that awakened the crowd were "Pride (In The Name of Love)" and "Bad."

The former, a tribute to Martin Luther King, Jr. had the audience cheering for the hoped of world peace and non-discrimination. "Bad," a song about heroin abuse/addiction opened the crowds eyes to its sadness with lyrics of being shredded in two, desolate and isolated. The song was inspired by the death of one of Bono's closest friends, who died of a heroin overdose.

The concert ended with two encores, the first comprised of

"With or Without You" and "Gloria." The second one was simply the song "40." A unique way of finishing up the concert, the lyrics were taken straight from the Bible's 40th Psalm.

To alter the musical line-up, The Edge and Clayton switched their respected instruments, creating a whole new sound.

And the ending? Well U2 let the crowd finish up, as the whole place swayed with their arms in the air, repeating the lyrics.

Soul searching? Spiritual? Uplifting? A revelation? I once heard that church should become what U2 is. If this ever happens I'll quit writing and become a priest.

Athletic Council to hold open forum

The questions about intercollegiate athletics on a national level seem to be never ending. This is also true at Wright State where the athletic program is focusing on its move to Division I in the fall.

Drug testing, the Ervin J. Nutter Activity Center, the move to Division I, and the selection of an intercollegiate conference are the most common areas of inquiry.

The WSU athletic council, a body of 16 representatives of the university community, guides the Raider intercollegiate athletic program through each of its major moves, and these 16 members will be available to supply some answers to the many questions about WSU's athletic program on May 15.

Representatives of the council will be in front of Allyn Hall in the campus quad area to take questions from members of the university community, beginning at 12:30 p.m. In case of inclement weather, the forum will move to the Allyn Hall lounge. Students and other community members are encouraged to come to the forum and to ask questions directly to the council members.

D. Michael J. Cusack, WSU director of athletics, and Dr. Stephen D. Frederick, chairer of the council, will be the main speakers. Other members in attendance will include Dr. Carl Benner, former chairer and the president's appointee to the council, Dr. Gordon Wise, faculty representative to the NCAA, and Vince O'Brien and Bill Shephard, the student representatives to the council. Other council members also may be present.

Softballers win two from Rio Grande

By TODD BUNNELL

Associate Writer

Dickens once said, "It was the best of times. It was the worst of times." He didn't really have the Wright State Lady Raider softball team in mind, but it certainly fits.

The Raiders finally broke their habit of splitting doubleheaders, as they beat up on NAIA Rio Grande in a couple games.

WSU won 3-0 in the first game and trounced them 11-1 in the second game.

Unfortunately, WSU was on the down side of two games with Morehead State the next day. They lost 3-0 and 4-2.

At Rio Grande, Deb Gravitt picked up her fourth win against six losses on the year for WSU.

The Raiders scored three in the fifth to help her win 3-0.

Kari Spraul reached on an error, while Kim Torrence reached on a base-hit single. Spraul scored on an error, and Torrence scored on a fielder's choice. Jami Bush added another run when she scored on a wild pitch.

Deb Gravitt earned her fifth win, as the Raiders played with Rio Grande in their 11-1 victory.

Beth Buchanan began the scoring when she crossed the plate in the third off of Torrence's triple. Torrence had an outstanding day, going 3-for-3 and scoring three runs. Jami Bush, who went 3-for-4, batted Torrence home to push the score to 2-0. The RBI was one of five for Bush in the game.

The Raiders scored three more in the fifth off of singles by Torrence, Bush and Lisa McCarthy. They also added one in the sixth as the score rose to 6-0.

In the seventh, Sandy Neff was walked, and Annette Partin had a single. Torrence followed with a walk. This left the door wide open for Bush, who cranked a triple and chased all three home. Spraul came up to bat next with a walk. Amy Ellinger hit both of them home with her own rendition of a triple, and the score mounted to 11-0.

Then Rio Grande managed back-to-back doubles to score one in the seventh, but that was hardly enough.

The Raiders were a little less prosperous against Morehead State.

K. Davis for Morehead State held WSU to only four hits, as she picked up the win in the first game. Gravitt lost to put her at 5-7 on the year.

Morehead State scored in the fifth to break a scoreless tie when Combs hit a single, stole second and Stallard knocked her home. Morehead added two insurance runs in the sixth to elevate the score to its final 3-0.

In the second game, Morehead State jumped all over the Raiders in the first. Ison scored off of a triple by Stone, and Thomas followed that up with another triple. Thomas scored on a wild pitch, and the score rested at 3-0 in the first.

MSU picked up where they left off in the second. Lead-off hitter Baker reached on a hit and eventually scored as they went up, 4-0.

Wright State didn't recover until the seventh. Torrence led off with a single. Bush was hit by the pitch to gain access to first. McCarthy sent Torrence home, and Bush scored on a fielder's choice. The score became 4-2, but the Raiders didn't have any offense left.

K. Loscko got the win for Morehead State, while Mary Rush took her first loss on the year against an impressive two wins in her three outings.

Ulrich signs as WSU soccer recruit

Jim Ulrich, a first-team Western Ohio League selection from Beavercreek High School, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Wright State University and participate in the men's soccer program. He scored 16 goals with 12 assists for the Beavers, helping them to a 20-1-2 record. With Ulrich's help, Beavercreek won sectional and district titles and advanced to the Final Four in the Class AAA state playoffs before losing in the state semifinals to Lakota, 1-0.

"Jim has a very nice touch on the ball and has good speed," head coach Greg Andrulis said of his latest Raider. "He should challenge for a starting spot on the forward line immediately. He is definitely one of the best players in Dayton and reinforces our desire to keep the best players from this area at home."

A three-year letterwinner at Beavercreek, Ulrich was awarded the David Pleva Spirit Award after his senior year. The 20-1-2 mark his senior year was the best soccer record in the school's history. He also played in the Miami Valley Soccer League and the Celtics club soccer program.

"Jim is an aggressive player who works hard at both practice and during games," said John Guiliano, soccer coach at Beavercreek. "He is a scrappy player who will give you 110% on the field."

Ulrich is planning to pursue a major in the College of Science and Engineering at Wright State.

Brandon resigns from coaching post

Wright State women's soccer coach Maggie Brandon has resigned her position after two seasons to pursue other interests. Brandon, who coached Wright State's first women's soccer team in the fall of 1985, finished her collegiate coaching career with a 13-13-1 record, including a 9-7-1 mark in 1986. In addition to her coaching duties, Brandon teaches physical education in the Centerville school system.
